Harold Washington Treasurer

Harold Washington holds a bachelor's degree from Savannah State University in Business Management, a master's degree in Instructional Technology from Troy University, and a Specialist in Educational Leadership degree from Valdosta State University. He has previously served the Savannah State University National Alumni Association as the Financial Secretary and as the National Homecoming Raffle Coordinator.

A native of Savannah, Georgia, Harold is a 16 year educator who has a heart for children and believes that “education is the key to the door of opportunity”. During his time as an educator he has taught marketing, accounting, computer networking, money management and other business related courses to sixth through 12th grade students. He has also coached football, basketball, track, and cheerleading. He currently serves as the assistant principal at Columbia High School in Decatur, Georgia.

Harold is the son of two retired educators, Richard and Dr. Clemontine Washington, and the proud father of one son, Christopher.
